

PCC Public Meeting: Oxford, 10 October 2007

Press Complaints Commission Public Meeting - Oxford
Wednesday 10 October 2007

- Do you have an opinion on press standards?
- Would you know what to do if you had a complaint about a newspaper or magazine?

Come and meet us and talk to us about your concerns.

The Press Complaints Commission is holding a free public meeting in Oxford on Wednesday 10 October. Members of the public are invited to come and meet Commission members as well as PCC staff representatives who will be available to discuss the work of the PCC.

The day will be divided into two parts:

2.30 – 3.45pm: Surgery session

This session is designed for people who want to have a private, informal chat with a senior member of PCC staff about the media or about making a complaint to a newspaper. Staff will be pleased to explain how the complaints process operates, and will be able to offer advice on all matters relating to the press, including:

- How to make a complaint about a newspaper or magazine
- How the PCC's Code of Practice can be used when dealing with journalists and editors
- What rights individuals from different groups have under the Code
- What people can expect from making a complaint to the PCC

Members of the public who would just like to come along and pick up some information about the PCC are very welcome to do so.

4pm onwards: Question and Answer session

Members of the public are invited to grill a panel of experts who have experience of the PCC about any aspect of the press or the system of self-regulation. The members of the panel will be:

- Sir Christopher Meyer, Chairman of the PCC and former Ambassador to the USA and Press Secretary to Prime Minister John Major
- Alison Hastings, BBC Trustee for England; and former editor of the Newcastle Evening Chronicle and PCC Commission member
- Tim Toulmin, Director of the PCC

This will be an excellent opportunity for the public to share their views with senior representatives from the press industry, and we hope that people from all sections of the community will attend. The meeting will be held at the Assembly Room, Oxford Town Hall, St Aldates', Oxford OX1 1BX. Click here for a map.
